

Sign in to your Google Account with another email address

When you create a Google Account, you'll automatically get a Gmail address with it. But if you'd rather use another email address to sign in, you can link a non-Gmail email address to the account, and use it to sign in, recover your password, get notifications and more.

NOTE: Remember to use your Google Account password when signing in using this email address.

Add an Alternate Email Address

1. Once you've signed into your account, click on your personal circle icon in the upper right. Click on My Account.
2. In the "Personal info & privacy" section, select Your personal info.
3. Choose Email > Alternate emails.
4. Select Add other email. Enter an email address you own and select Add.

Google will send an email with a verification link to your alternate email address. You'll need to open the email and click the link before you can begin signing in to your account with the alternate address. Please note that email delivery can take some time.
